conventual

Legend has it that medieval nuns in Portugal used up tremendous quantities of egg whites in starching their habits leaving them overrun with yolks. So, in order to use up the yolks, they invented a plethora of sweets using sugar, egg custard, culinary host and almonds. Each region of the country has their specialties. We have some of the best such conventual sweets on offer.

Ovos Moles (A typical sweet from Aveiro, that encloses egg custard in rice paper form, resembling seashells or barrels)	1,4	Papos de Anjo em calda (Egg yolks cooked in a sugar syrup)	2,1
Castanhas de Ovos (Egg custard is rolled into balls and then roasted over fire, chestnut shaped)	1,5	São Gonçálinhos (An homage to Saint Gonçalo made with egg yolks and sugar)	2,4
Queijadas de Coimbra (Sweet made with cheese, eggs, milk and sugar)	1,6	Fatias do Freixo (Sponge cake soaked in egg custard, covered in sugar)	2,7
Nevadas de Penacova (Sponge cake and egg custard, covered in sugar)	1,8	Santa Cruz (Candied pear, egg custard and almond pastry)	2,7
Lorvão Pastries / Sticks (Eggs mixed with almonds, butter and sugar)	1,8	Trouxas de Ovos (Angel's hair and egg custard pulled together into a bundle)	2,6
Queijadas de Pereira (Curd cheese with sugar, eggs and flour)	2,0	Cones de Ovos Moles (Egg custard cones)	2,7
Queijinhos de Lorvão (almonds with egg custard covered in sugar)	2,1	Dom Rodrigo (Algarve sweet with Angel's Hair, almonds, sugar and a touch of cinnamon)	3,1
Broinhas Doces (A sweet made from almonds, eggs and cinnamon)	1,6	Conventual Cake Slice	4,0
